
Ron Morgan
Krylov Multigrid Eigenvalue Computations

Dept of Mathematics
Baylor University
Waco
TX 76798-7328
`Ronald.Morgan@baylor.edu`
Zhao Yang

We look at using Krylov methods on two grids to compute eigenvalues and eigenvectors of matrices that come from discretization of a differential equation. Restarted Arnoldi is applied on the coarse grid. Then the eigenvectors are improved on the fine grid. We may also consider multiple grids and applications to solution of linear equations.